Comprehension

Read the passage and choose the correct answer from a, b, c, or d:

People like to make predictions. What life will be like in the future is one area that a particularly large number of people make predictions about. As we make predictions about the future from our point of view today, it can be interesting to look back at what people in the past predicted, and notice which predictions were accurate and which were not and the reasons why this is.

Fifty years ago, there was a sense that people in the future would become more concerned about protecting the environment than they were at the time. However, all those years ago, when people thought of protecting the environment, they tended to see this in terms of picking up litter and recycling plastic bottles. This contrasts with attitudes towards environmental protection today, which focus on not travelling at all or as far by aeroplanes or petrol-fuelled cars and trying to reduce the amount of clothes or plastic packaging you consume.

Regarding transport, some people living fifty years ago expected that we would be driving in the air instead of on the roads now. There were indeed plans to create a flying car back then, but the idea never really took off and seemed impractical. The idea that flying cars would spell an end to traffic jams also seems somewhat unrealistic today.

There were predictions that technology in general would become a more important part of our everyday lives, and these have proven to be correct. People living fifty years ago expected that items such as computers would become lighter and more compact in the future, for example, and this has happened. On the other hand, there was a belief that everyone would have a robot to do all their housework in their home and this has proven to be incorrect.

117. According to the passage, a particularly large number of people like to make predictions about .....

- a. the future aspects of life.
- b. the difference between life now and in the future.
- c. the same issues people predicted in the past.
- d. what we won't be able to do in the future.

118. According to the passage, today's attitudes, which aim at protecting the environment, focus on .....

- a. using ships instead of planes.
- b. preventing the production of new cars.
- c. avoiding travelling by petrol-fuelled means of transport.
- d. prohibiting cutting down more trees.

119. According to the passage, we should reduce the amount of clothes or plastic packaging we consume to .....

- a. avoid recycling.
- b. decrease consumption.
- c. save more money.
- d. protect the environment.

120. But the idea never really took off and seemed impractical. In this sentence, "take off" means ...

- a. the opposite of 'land'.
- b. the opposite of 'put on'.
- c. make a great success.
- d. cause heavy losses.

121. According to the passage, driving in the air instead of on the roads .....

- a. proved to be the only solution to protect the environment.
- b. was not a practical solution to protect the environment.
- c. was completely successful
- d. was not suggested by anyone

122. What is the main idea of the second paragraph?

- a. Fifty years ago, people's concern about the environment was the same as today.
- b. The amount of clothes or plastic packaging we consume is the primary cause of pollution.
- c. Fifty years ago, people's concern about keeping the environment clean was based on focus on not travelling at all or as far by aeroplane or petrol-fuelled cars.
- d. Fifty years ago, people's concern about the environment was different from today's at which focused on not travelling at all or as far by aeroplane or in petrol-fuelled cars.
